THE COPY DESK / TWELVE COMPLETE POSTS

Words that open the conversation.

A coordinated English-language sequence, written to accompany the delivered social cards and supporting campaign assets.

THE CITY HAS A HOLD ON YOU. / NON-VIDEO CAMPAIGN

Each block below contains usable post copy. Channel suggestions are editorial choices, not promises of reach. Adapt a long caption to a thread where necessary; preserve the factual meaning and unofficial identity.

BEFORE PUBLISHING

Attach the matching card and any supporting files named in its publishing note. Posts 08-09 belong to a planned activity and should only be used once a host is ready to accept and moderate replies. No post in this deck has been published by creating this package.

All sample captions are original. Post 02 draws its factual status from Deadlock's official Steam page. The character summaries are documented in the factsheet.

The opening statement

Asset: KV-01 · social-01.png | Open matching social card

> THE CITY HAS A HOLD ON YOU.
>
> A place to get curious. A cast to remember. A moment you want to share.
>
> An independent Deadlock fan campaign, told through artwork, hero spotlights and player stories. Start with the image. Tell us what caught your eye.
>
> #Deadlock #FanArt

Publishing purpose: Ask for a specific visual detail, not a generic reaction.

Alt-text starting point: Master campaign composition with the headline The City Has a Hold on You. Check against the final attached crop.

> LOOK CLOSER.
>
> New to Deadlock? Start with the facts: it is Valve's multiplayer game in early development. Access is currently limited to friend invitations from playtesters; the release date is still unannounced.
>
> This collection is an independent fan project. For current information, go to the official source: https://store.steampowered.com/app/1422450/Deadlock/
>
> Save this post for the link.

Publishing purpose: Official information click; keep availability current before publishing.

POST 04 / INSTAGRAM CAROUSEL / COMMUNITY GUIDE

Gameplay primer

Asset: PLAY-01 · social-04.png | Open matching social card

> READ THE MOMENT.
>
> A busy fight becomes more interesting when you know what to look for. Follow one player's movement. Watch the timing of a commitment. Notice what a teammate makes possible.
>
> Our five-panel primer is a starting point for looking at Deadlock with more intention. Swipe through, then save the sequence for your next conversation about the game.
>
> Which part of a match took you the longest to understand?
>
> Independent fan guide; check the current game for changing details.

Publishing purpose: Save the primer; ask a useful beginner question.

Alt-text starting point: A campaign card introducing the five-panel gameplay primer, Read the Moment. Check against the final attached crop.

Dynamo spotlight

Asset: HERO-02 · social-05.png | Open matching social card

> MAKE SPACE. CHANGE THE FIGHT.
>
> A Dynamo spotlight about the moment everything comes together.
>
> Some heroes make you notice the spectacle. Others make you notice the timing. What is the team play you still remember?
>
> Original fan campaign artwork and copy. #Deadlock #Dynamo

Publishing purpose: Invite a memorable team-play story.

Alt-text starting point: Dynamo character spotlight with the fan headline Make Space. Change the Fight. Check against the final attached crop.

> SOMEONE HAS YOUR BACK.
>
> Ivy is our third character spotlight-a reminder that a favorite game moment can belong to the person who helped make it happen.
>
> Tell us about a teammate who turned a difficult moment around. Credit them by their public handle only if they are comfortable with it.
>
> Independent Deadlock fan campaign. #Deadlock #Ivy

Publishing purpose: Invite a credit-conscious teammate story.

Alt-text starting point: Ivy character spotlight with the original fan headline Someone Has Your Back. Check against the final attached crop.

> EVERY CORNER HAS A STORY.
>
> Look away from the center of the action for a moment. A sign. A doorway. The scale of a street. The way a place frames the people moving through it.
>
> This city study collects three places worth a second look. Which detail would you turn into a poster?
>
> Independent Deadlock fan campaign. Environmental imagery is credited in the accompanying source notes.

Publishing purpose: Get a concrete city-detail response.

Alt-text starting point: A city-study card inviting the viewer to notice architecture and environmental details. Check against the final attached crop.

POST 08 / ONE ORIGINAL COMMUNITY THREAD; OPTIONAL SOCIAL POINTER

> STREETLIGHT STORIES.
>
> Show us the city through your eyes: one Deadlock screenshot, one title, and a caption of up to 40 words explaining the detail you noticed.
>
> Reply to this original post with your own capture. Entries remain open for five days from this post's timestamp. One entry per person; you may replace it before the window closes. Cropping, basic exposure adjustment and privacy redaction are welcome. Keep the scene intact-no generated or composited entries.
>
> We will look at atmosphere, visual composition and the connection between image and caption. There is no prize and no game access offer. We will ask before reposting anyone's work.
>
> Independent fan activity. #Deadlock #StreetlightStories

Publishing purpose: Only use when the host can moderate the original thread; pair with the full playbook.

Alt-text starting point: Streetlight Stories screenshot challenge card. One original screenshot and a caption of up to 40 words. Check against the final attached crop.

Response style

USEFUL CURIOSITY

“That is a great detail to point out. What made you notice it?”

“Was it the character's look or the way the moment played out that stayed with you?”

CLEAR CORRECTIONS

“Thanks for flagging that. We have corrected the wording and updated the source note.”

“This is an independent fan project. The official Steam page is the right place to check current game access.”

Challenge craft note

Asset: COMMUNITY-01 · social-09.png | Open matching social card

> ONE FRAME. YOUR PERSPECTIVE.
>
> For Streetlight Stories, give the eye somewhere to land. A strong frame can come from a quiet corner, a striking shape, or a small detail everyone else hurried past.
>
> Your caption should add something the image cannot: why you stopped, what you noticed, or the feeling you wanted to keep.
>
> Use your own screenshot and remove private chat or personal information. Reply to the original challenge post so entries stay together. The original post contains the submission window and rules.
>
> Independent fan activity. No prize or access offer.

Publishing purpose: Send interested contributors to the original thread, not a second submission location.
